AGRICULTURE IN TURKEY

The very first civilizations in the history settled on highly fertile lands of Anatolia where is known for agricultural practices. From breathtakingly beautiful hanging gardens of Babylon in Mesopotamia to the ancient olive trees rooted in Aegean region, locals have always engaged in farming activities. Even after centuries, these fruitful lands continue to offer the best harvests to those who know how to treat them.

All seven regions of Turkey host arable lands for various agricultural products, making it possible to maintain farming practices throughout the year. Turkey is one of the leading dry food and dried fruit export markets globally, world's largest in dried apricot and sultani grapes production and distribution to be more precise. Apple sector is also highly profitable: producers in Turkey offer the most convenient price ranges in the international market.

Along with the conveniences of production, distribution is also highly beneficial in this country. Turkey's location gives it easy access to many areas whether in Asia or Europe. Mersin International Port (MIP) is the busiest in Turkey and connected to all main ports around the world. It is adjacent to the Mersin Free Zone through a passage. Railway and road transportation are also provided from MIP to domestic locations and Middle East.

OUR AGRICULTURAL METHODS

Combining the latest technologies with the knowledge and experience we gained from traditional agricultural techniques, we aim to reach the maximum efficiency for both the buyer and the seller.

We breathed life into every field we stepped into, and adapted the same approach towards agriculture sector by always maintaining an innovative point of view. We only work with agricultural experts who are the best in their fields and use high technology innovations to achieve the highest quality products possible while sustaining a more efficient, environmentally friendly and safer approach with these advanced devices.

OUR AGRICULTURAL LAND INVESTMENTS

Comprehending that the good land has a great potential for producing commodities, we invest in agricultural lands where we reap the fruits of our hard work. We started in Turkey, yet we do not intend to stop here.

The global perspective we adapted as TOR Holding guides us through every country that we wish to make investments in. We embrace the idea of expanding worldwide with the stable and secure return of agricultural land investments and our grasp on the sector. We aim to make Turkey hold a favorable position in the global market, just as it deserves.

CERTIFICATION & STANDARDIZATION

Offering high quality products is our ultimate goal. Thus, we follow all the national/international production policies closely in order to shape our quality standards, and we get our products tested by TSE and TAREKS.

A public institution in Turkey, TSE is the sole authority responsible for inspecting the products by testing their compliance with the law, rules, codes and standards applicable in global markets. It is an official member of globally active organizations, three of them being International Organization for Standardization (ISO), Standards and Metrology Institute for the Islamic Countries and European Committee for Standardization. Following the inspection of TSE, our products receive a certificate which illustrates that their quality and safety levels are above a certain standard.

TAREKS, also known as The Turkish Risk Based Trade Control System, is a system that makes quality and safety inspections on import and export goods and conducts risk assessments, as the name suggests. For agricultural products, an inspector makes physical inspection and sends a sample to the laboratory if required. The remaining process is carried out online by the Ministry of Economy. It is an efficient system that is both environmentally friendly and transparent. TAREKS is a member of UNNEXT, United Nations ESCAP and UNECE.

QUALITY CONTROL

To achieve a maximum level of quality, we work with more than 100 laboratories all around Turkey, where the soil properties and quality of the irrigation water are inspected and plant analysis is made. We are aware that each step is equally important in agricultural practices and take no risk before we send our products to TSE and TAREKS.

DELIVERY

We provide all delivery types found under INCOTERMS. Our customers can choose from 11 different delivery options in accordance with their needs while we take action correspondingly. We use the latest Frigo containers to provide protection against decomposition during delivery process which may take months.
